

Il n'existe pas de traduction pour le moment. Merci de votre compréhension.

Location: New York, NY

Lehman College/CUNY seeks applicants for tenure-track Assistant Professorship in Archaeology, with research focus on prehistoric Archaic/agriculturally-based or complex societies of Central or South America, beginning August 27, 2010, pending budgetary approval.

Annual teaching 21 credit hours (usually 7 course sections) in Introductory Archaeology and advanced courses in specialty, as well as a broader multidisciplinary College-wide course. Graduate teaching opportunities are available through the consorial PhD Program in Anthropology at the CUNY Graduate Center.

The Department of Anthropology includes four cultural anthropologists, one other archaeologist and four physical anthropologists; two undergraduate degrees are offered, a four-field B.A. and a B.S. in Anthropology, Biology & Chemistry. For more details see www.lehman.cuny.edu (Job Opportunities), www.lehman.edu/deannss/anthropology/ & AAA Guide.

Please complete the on-line application process by accessing The City University of New York's website at www.cuny.edu. Navigate to Careers at CUNY and select the link Careers at CUNYfirst. Have three (3) current reference letters (emphasizing teaching as well as research) sent by mail, to: Professor Vincent H. Stefan; Chair, Dept. Anthropology; Lehman College/CUNY; 250 Bedford Park Boulevard West; Bronx, NY 10468. Contact: anthropology.department@lehman.cuny.edu

Assistant Professor rank; salary range: $42,873 - $76,395. Review of applications will begin November 30, 2009 and continue until position is filled. AA/EEO/ADA/IRCA.

Requirements: PhD in Anthropology in-hand by November 30, 2009; teaching experience, publications, and field and lab research focused on one of above options; commitment to innovative and dynamic undergraduate teaching required; current fieldwork a plus. Continued publication in peer-reviewed journals and service on Departmental, College and University committees also expected, as is grant-funded research.

Lehman is a 4-year college of the City University of New York system, with a 37-acre tree-lined campus located in The Bronx. The student body includes more than 11,000 undergraduates and graduate students from many countries and diverse ethnic origins.

Contact:

Professor Vincent H. Stefan
Chair, Dept. Anthropology
Lehman College/CUNY
250 Bedford Park Boulevard West
Bronx, NY 10468
718-960-8850
vincent.stefan@lehman.cuny.edu